++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Fine and dry for many. Showery in far north.

Today:
Low cloud and isolated drizzle clearing southeastwards across England and Wales. Otherwise, fog patches clearing to leave a dry day with sunny spells, and still feeling warm in the south. Windy and showery across northern Scotland.

Tonight:
Remaining breezy and showery across northern Scotland with more persistent rain in the far northwest later. Dry elsewhere with mostly clear skies, and turning chilly for many.

Monday:
Cloudy in the north with rain or showers, mainly across Scotland. Dry in the south with plenty of sunshine.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Most places dry with variable cloud, some sunshine and perhaps overnight mist and fog patches. Cloudier in the north and, perhaps the east on Tuesday, with light rain at times.
